

Boy Scouts' Good Turn for the Environment-

The Blue Ridge Environmental Club

Interested in growing your scout spirit and helping the environment?

About the Group:

This group is going to be a council-wide environmental group that has the main goals of raising environmental awareness in the troops in the Blue Ridge Council and to get the scouts more involved in environmental conservation. This group would possibly meet on the 1st and 3rd Thursday's of the month at the Troop 9 Scout Hut at Buncombe Street United Methodist Church in downtown Greenville. We are looking for scouts and adults who are interested in this group and in environmental conservation. Any scout, cub, venturer, or adult is welcome to join.

What we would do:

Some short term plans for the group is to work as a group on the Hornaday awards (an environmental conservation award), environment concerned merit badges, recycling in the troops and churches, and environmental service projects. Our future goals include forming this group into a large, successful environmental group in the council, raising environmental awareness in upstate SC, and getting the scouts and their troops more concerned and active with environmental conservation.

What we need YOU to do:

In you are interested in participating in a group like this, please let us know. We would love to have anyone who has the time and motivation. All projects and events that we do in the group would be voluntary. I hope to have this group started by early December. This is where you come in: I need anyone who is interested or has questions, to contact me as soon as possible.
